Great Food and Fun
— Since 1938 —

The Bill Gray's Story

In the spring of 1938 a young family man, working at Eastman Kodak Company for 17 cents an hour, decided he needed to supplement his income in order to support his family. He accomplished this by working weekends selling hot dogs and soda pop out of a small road side stand near his home in Webster, NY.

That young man was Bill Gray. Bill and his wife, Alberta, worked as many as eighteen hours per day on the weekends to maintain their fledgling business. Four years later, making more money on the weekends than he did at his full time job at Kodak, Bill decided to go into the restaurant business full time.

Today, the Bill Gray's Team continues to make Bill Gray's one of the most popular restaurants in the area.
